Speaking with B.E.T. — which declared Blood Harmony "definitely set to introduce a new dynamic to country music thanks to its lead single alongside banging deep cuts like 'River of Sins' and 'Don't Come For Me'" — Tekitha and Prana Supreme discussed the importance of representation in country music. Blood Harmony single "Superpower" (7.14) was named a "Must-Hear New Country Song" by Billboard Magazine: "Their sultry voices celebrate female empowerment over rolling electronic loops, throbbing percussion and handclaps. At moments, this thoroughly R&B-laced pop track recalls the glossy sheen of early Destiny's Child, as chants of 'Power Up!' further ramp up the choruses."

Following its national TV debut performance on NBC's *TODAY with Hoda & Jenna, the groundbreaking duo announced a major market club tour, set to kick off in September (click here for all dates and ticket information).

"We can't wait to get out on the road to play these songs live and get some real face to face time with audiences across the country," shares O.N.E The Duo. "We hope you join us on the Blood Harmony tour this fall! Let the good times roll!"

About O.N.E The Duo:

O.N.E The Duo, consisting of Tekitha and Prana, is a captivating mother-daughter country music duo who share a passion for extraordinary music. Tekitha, the seasoned soulful mom, and Prana Supreme, the insightful, poetic daughter of hip hop legend RZA, the founder of Wu-Tang Clan, anchor this musical powerhouse. Their philosophy and approach to life and songwriting are encapsulated in the initials O.N.E, representing "observant, noetic, effervescent." Their music is a harmonious fusion of country, hip hop, soul, R&B, and jazz that defies traditional genre limitations and offers their own unique country sound with a twist. As a result of purposefully pushing musical boundaries, their music represents their multi-cultural upbringing, transcends labels, and resonates with diverse audiences.

Prana's exposure to music from birth, nurtured by Tekitha's creative sessions and encouragement, shaped her artistic identity. This led her to approach her mom with the idea of singing and writing songs together professionally. Tekitha, an accomplished artist herself, initially hesitated, concerned about how that decision would affect her daughter and their relationship. However, perseverance and transparent communication ultimately birthed O.N.E the Duo. They relocated to Nashville in 2016 where they found a relatable and music-focused community, and their sound gradually morphed into an Americana folksy vibe that organically led them into the country music landscape. Collaborating with esteemed songwriters, they crafted heartfelt songs that connected generations and diverse experiences.
