About O.N.E The Duo:

O.N.E The Duo, consisting of Tekitha and Prana, is a captivating mother-daughter country music duo who share a passion for extraordinary music. Tekitha, the seasoned soulful mom, and Prana Supreme, the insightful, poetic daughter of hip hop legend RZA, the founder of Wu-Tang Clan, anchor this musical powerhouse. Their philosophy and approach to life and songwriting are encapsulated in the initials O.N.E, representing "observant, noetic, effervescent." Their music is a harmonious fusion of country, hip hop, soul, R&B, and jazz that defies traditional genre limitations and offers their own unique country sound with a twist. As a result of purposefully pushing musical boundaries, their music represents their multi-cultural upbringing, transcends labels, and resonates with diverse audiences.

Prana's exposure to music from birth, nurtured by Tekitha's creative sessions and encouragement, shaped her artistic identity. This led her to approach her mom with the idea of singing and writing songs together professionally. Tekitha, an accomplished artist herself, initially hesitated, concerned about how that decision would affect her daughter and their relationship. However, perseverance and transparent communication ultimately birthed O.N.E the Duo. They relocated to Nashville in 2016 where they found a relatable and music-focused community, and their sound gradually morphed into an Americana folky vibe that organically led them into the country music landscape. Collaborating with esteemed songwriters, they crafted heartfelt songs that connected generations and diverse experiences.
